Las Orquideas (the Spanish word for orchid) is situated in the unspoilt village of Los Romanes, in the rolling hills overlooking Lake Vinuela, providing stunning views over the lake and the surrounding mountains. Los Romanes is on the Ruta de los Almoravidea y Almohades, which follow the tracks of a civilisation that enlightened Europe. The routes lead to Granada along the paths that travellers followed for centuries, leaving behind history, art, traditions, landscapes and feasts of the towns and villages of Al-Andalus. The Axarquia region of Andalucia, bordered by the Mediterranean on the south and mountains to the north, is alleged to enjoy the best climate in Europe. Las Orquideas was built in 2013. Designed by recognised architects from...(Ask for More Details!)
